

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An auxiliary memory device for automation controller is disclosed. The internal data stored in the memory device is delivered to the internal memory device of the controller to update the internal instructions of the controller after connecting the memory device with the connecting interface of the controller. Besides, the internal data of the controller is also backed up to the memory device. Therefore, the expansion of the controller is improved.